UN Sustainable Development Goals | Origins

- At the 2015 United Nations General Assembly in New York, 193 governments adopted the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its 17 Sustainable Development Goals. The goals apply globally including USA, Japan and Europe.
- The SDGs were developed through an open working group of the UN General Assembly allowing for a global consultation to provide input on the development of the goals.
- The SDGs are not legally binding, all governments are expected to establish national frameworks to achieve the 17 goals.
- The SDGs incorporate the Paris Agreement on Climate Change reached at the COP21 Paris Climate Conference.
