1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I.
3 INTRODUCTION

4 This case involves an allegedly retaliatory failure to promote 5 an employee of the San Bernardino Fire Department for engaging in 6 pro-union activities. This is a garden variety unfair labor
7 practice case which should have been brought with the California
8 Public Employment Relations Board. Indeed, it is hard to understand 9 why Plaintiffs try to circumvent the exclusive jurisdiction of PERB, 10 given that Plaintiffs, and their attorney, are familiar with PERB 11 since they have been involved in other PERB charges against the 12 City. In any event, this is a classic case of preemption. Most of 13 the case is subject to dismissal because of PERB's exclusive 14 jurisdiction and Plaintiffs' failure to exhaust administrative 15 remedies.

16 Plaintiffs also make the novel assertion that Lewis engaged in 17 protected activity when he secretly tape recorded his wife and 18 another employee, thereby confirming that his wife and the other 19 employee were having an affair. Lewis's conduct was not legally 20 protected. Indeed, it was just the opposite; it was an obvious 21 violation of the California Penal Code, which outlaws such 22 surreptitious tape-recording. In fact, when Plaintiff was 23 questioned about this in his deposition, he refused to answer based 24 on his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

25 Plaintiffs also sue under 42 U.S.C. section 1983. These claims 26 fail because, as to defendant Larry Pitzer, Plaintiffs cannot raise 27 a triable issue of fact that his stated reasons for not promoting

1 Plaintiff Lewis and for conducting an investigation of him were 2 pretexts to hide retaliation. As to the City, the section 1983
3 action fails for the additional reason that, under Pembaur v. City
4 of Cincinnati, 475 U.S. 469 (1986) and its progeny, an employment
5 decision by Chief Larry Pitzer does not impose municipal liability
6 on the City.

7 II.
8 FACTS

9 A. Parties

10 Plaintiff Richard Lewis is employed as a captain with the San 11 Bernardino Fire Department.

12 Plaintiff San Bernardino City Professional Firefighters Union,
13 Local 891, ("Union") is a union representing employees of the Fire 14 Department below the rank of Battalion Chief.

15 Defendant Larry Pitzer is the Fire Chief.

16 B. The Promotional Process

17 This case involves a decision to promote Dennis Moon to 18 Battalion Chief instead of Plaintiff Lewis.

19 The first step of the promotional process to Battalion Chief is 20 a written examination administered by the City's Civil Service
21 Department. Applicants who pass that test then undergo a testing 22 process administered by the Fire Department to prepare a list of 23 candidates ranked according to their respective numerical scores.
24 The Departmental testing process includes a written portion and 25 assessments of candidates by panels of senior members of the 26 Department and officials from other departments who judge the 27 candidates in simulations. It also includes an evaluation of the 1 applicants' personnel files. The end result of this process is a 2 list ranked according to numerical score.

3 When it comes time to make a promotion, the Fire Chief selects 4 a candidate from the list, according to the "Rule of Three". The 5 Rule of Three, which is commonly used by public sector employers for 6 promotions to management positions, allows the decision maker to 7 choose a candidate from the top three names on the list.

8 C. The 2002-03 Testing

9 The testing process involved in this case began in the fall of 10 2002 with the Civil Service test. The Fire Department testing 11 process was completed in March 2003.

12 The three candidates for the Battalion Chief promotion were 13 Skip Kulikoff, Plaintiff Lewis and Dennis Moon. The final list, in 14 ranked order, was Kulikoff (total score 83.8), Lewis (78.1) and Moon 15 (71.5).

16 As of March 2003, Kulikoff was president of the Union. Lewis 17 was the Union's vice president.

18 An opening for Battalion Chief arose in May 2003. Chief Pitzer
19 picked Kulikoff for the promotion. This left two names on the list, 20 Lewis and Moon.

21 Because the Battalion Chief is not a bargaining unit position, 22 Kulikoff left his position as Union president, and was replaced as 23 Union president by Lewis.

24 D. Lewis's Tenure as Union President

25 Lewis was Union president from May 2003 to December 2004.

26 During his tenure as Union president, the Union was involved in 27 several successful civil service challenges to Department personnel

1 decisions. In addition, while Lewis was its vice-president, the 2 Union was involved in an unfair labor practice complaint with the 3 Public Employment Relations Board alleging that the Department
4 violated the Meyers-Miliias-Brown Act by not promoting Brain Crowell.
5 The PERB charge was withdrawn as part of a settlement under which 6 Crowell received the promotion effective May 13, 2002.

7 Plaintiff Lewis alleges in this case that he was active in 8 requiring the Department to follow state law regarding the rights of 9 police officers and asserting their rights in the political setting.
10 Lewis testified that all such conduct was performed in his capacity 11 as a Union official.

12 E. The Kulikoff-Lewis Affair

13 In November 2003, Plaintiff Lewis reported to City management
14 that he had caught his best friend, Kulikoff, having an on-duty 15 sexual affair with Lewis's wife. Lewis said he confirmed the 16 existence of this affair by wiretapping his own home telephone and 17 recording conversations between Kulikoff and Mrs. Lewis.

18 Chief Pitzer ordered an internal investigation of the conduct 19 of both Kulikoff and Lewis. The investigation was performed by the 20 San Bernardino Police Department's Internal Affairs ("IA")
21 Department.

22 In interviews with the IA Department, Lewis admitted that he 23 tape-recorded telephone conversations without the knowledge of 24 Kulikoff or Mrs. Lewis, and had not acted at the direction of any 25 law enforcement official. Thus, this was a textbook violation of 26 California Penal Code section 631, which prohibits surreptitious 27 eavesdropping and wiretapping. (In his deposition, Lewis refused to 1 answer questions about the circumstances of his wiretapping, or even 2 to confirm that it happened, invoking the Fifth Amendment.)

3 In light of the rather unique nature of this sordid matter,
4 Chief Pitzer decided not to discipline Lewis for his illegal
5 sleuthing. He so informed Lewis in a memo on June 7, 2004.

6 Kulikoff went on a leave of absence, then took a medical 7 retirement and never returned to work at the Fire Department.

8 F. The Promotion of Dennis Moon

9 The next opening for a Battalion Chief arose in September 2004, 10 due to Kulikoff's departure. At that time, two names remained on 11 the list, Dennis Moon and Lewis.

12 By this time, it had been one and a half years since the 13 Departmental evaluations for Battalion Chief. During that year and 14 a half, Chief Pitzer had become increasingly impressed with the 15 growing skills, leadership and professionalism of Dennis Moon. When 16 it came time to pick a new Battalion Chief in the fall of 2004, 17 Chief Pitzer favored Moon over Lewis. However, before making his 18 final decision, Chief Pitzer solicited the input of his Battalion 19 Chiefs and Deputy Chief concerning who they thought would be better.
20 The consensus among the Command Staff was that Moon was the better 21 candidate.

22 Chief Pitzer then made his decision to pick Moon, based on his 23 judgment that, at that point in time, Moon showed better maturity 24 and leadership on the fire scene and elsewhere, and had better 25 management potential and interpersonal skills than Lewis.

26 G. Lewis Gets the List Extended

27 The 2002 promotional list was due to expire in November 2004.

1 Lewis petitioned the San Bernardino Civil Service Board to include 2 his name on the list for another year. Although the request was 3 opposed by the Union and management, the Civil Service Board granted
4 Lewis's request.

5 However, no openings for a Battalion Chief arose in the ensuing 6 year, so Lewis remained a captain.

7 H. The Departure of the Deputy Chief

8 In December 2004, the Deputy Chief, Brian Preciado, left to 9 accept a position as fire chief in Vacaville, California.

10 Chief Pitzer offered the Deputy Chief position to Mat Fratus, 11 the Department's Training Officer, but Fratus declined. Had Chief 12 Pitzer promoted one of the other existing Battalion Chiefs to Deputy 13 Chief, an opening would have been created for a new Battalion Chief.
14 However, Chief Pitzer decided to fill the Deputy Chief position on 15 an interim basis. He did not feel any of the existing Battalion
16 Chiefs were yet suited for the opening, and wanted to take enough 17 time to pick the best candidate possible. Therefore, he selected 18 Dennis Reichardt, a former Deputy Chief who returned from retirement 19 to fill the opening. Initially, Mr. Reichardt agreed to be the 20 interim Deputy Chief for six months. His stint as interim Deputy 21 Chief was later extended to a year. In December 2005, a new Deputy 22 Chief, from outside the Department, was chosen.

23
24 III.
25 ARGUMENT

26 A. CALIFORNIA LAW ON LABOR PREEMPTION

27 1. Meyers-Miliias-Brown Act

1 The Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (MMBA) is a California statute
2 governing the rights of state and local public sector employees,
3 including firefighters, to join and support labor unions. Government 4 Code sections 3500-3510. The MMBA is patterned on the federal 5 National Labor Relations Act. Accordingly, authority under the NLRA
6 is considered persuasive in interpreting the MMBA. Los Angeles
7 County v. Superior Court, 23 Cal.3d 55, 63, 151 Cal.Rptr. 547 8 (1978).

9 The Public Employee Relations Board (PERB) is the state 10 administrative agency that oversees and enforces the MMBA. Like its 11 federal counterpart (the National Labor Relations Board), PERB has 12 exclusive jurisdiction over alleged violations of the labor
13 statutes, including the MMBA, which it oversees. Government Code 14 section 3509(b). PERB has broad authority to fashion remedies in 15 cases of unfair employment practices. Government Code section 3509.

16 2. Preemption Under MMBA

17 The United States Supreme Court and other federal courts 18 interpreting the NLRA have developed a rule of preemption known as 19 the Garmon doctrine, named after the landmark decision of San Diego 20 Bldg. Trades Council v. Garmon, 359 U.S. 236 (1959). Under the 21 Garmon doctrine, a claim is preempted, and within the exclusive 22 jurisdiction of the NLRB, if the activities alleged in the claim are 23 arguably protected or prohibited by the NLRA. The Garmon doctrine 24 has been applied in hundreds of cases to dismiss lawsuits concerning 25 activities which arguably constitute unfair labor practices under 26 the NLRA, including claims that an employee was retaliated against 27 for pro-union activity. See e.g. Shane v. Greyhound Lines, 868 F.2d

1 1057 (9th Cir. 1989).

2 California law has a Garmon doctrine counterpart, under which 3 claims involving conduct arguably protected or prohibited by MMBA
4 are within the exclusive jurisdiction of PERB. A leading case is El 5 Rancho Unified School District v. National Education Association, 33
6 Cal.3d 946, 192 Cal.Rptr. 123 (1983), in which the California
7 Supreme Court held that a school district's lawsuit seeking damages 8 for an allegedly illegal teacher strike was preempted and within the 9 exclusive jurisdiction of PERB. In so holding, the court relied on 10 Garmon and its progeny, finding that a court's jurisdiction is 11 preempted if the conduct at issue is arguably protected or 12 prohibited by one of the California labor statutes administered by 13 PERB and the controversy presented to the court "may fairly be 14 termed the same" as could be presented to PERB. 33 Cal.3d at 953-15 960.

16 3. Exhaustion of Remedies

17 A corollary of the preemption doctrine is that a plaintiff 18 cannot sue on a preempted claim unless he has first exhausted his 19 administrative remedies. Stated differently, because the 20 administrative agency (here PERB) has exclusive primary 21 jurisdiction, one cannot sue in court without first exhausting the 22 available administrative remedies with PERB. Leek v. Washington
23 Unified School District, 124 Cal.App.3d 43, 177 Cal.Rptr. 196 24 (1981).

25
26 B. THE FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

27
28

1 1. The First Cause of Action is Preempted and Lies Within
2 PERB's Exclusive Jurisdiction

3 The first cause of action is by both Plaintiffs against both 4 Defendants, and seeks a writ of mandate.

5 The first cause of action is brought expressly under the MMBA.
6 It alleges that plaintiff Lewis was actively involved in his union 7 (complaint paragraph 10), including acting as lead union negotiator
8 in "continuous battles" with management. (Complaint paragraph 12).
9 The first cause of action further alleges that plaintiff Lewis was 10 retaliated against for these activities by being wrongfully denied a 11 promotion and being subjected to an unjustified personnel
12 investigation. (Complaint paragraphs 13, 16-20, 28-31).

13 The first cause of action seeks an order compelling 14 Defendants to promote Lewis to battalion chief, retroactive to 15 the day he was passed over, together with all back pay, 16 benefits and seniority rights, and an award of other damages.
17 (Complaint paragraphs 34 and 35).

18 One can hardly imagine a cause of action more clearly alleging 19 activity arguably prohibited by the MMBA. A claim that an employee 20 was retaliated against for engaging in union activities is a garden
21 variety application of the Garmon doctrine. Shane v. Greyhound 22 Lines, 868 F.2d 1057 (9th Cir. 1989). Accordingly, the first cause 23 of action is preempted, and lies within the exclusive jurisdiction
24 of PERB.1

26 1 The fact that the first cause of action purports to seek mandamus
27 relief does not change this conclusion. The preemption doctrine
28 applies with equal force to actions for mandamus. Personnel
Commission v. Barstow Unified School District, 43 Cal.App.4th 871,

1 C. THE SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

2 1. The Second Cause of Action is Preempted and Lies Within
3 PERB's Exclusive Jurisdiction

4 The second cause of action is a claim by both Plaintiffs 5 against both Defendants, seeking a writ of mandate under California 6 Government Code section 3300 et seq.

7 The second cause of action is based on the same allegedly 8 wrongful conduct as the first cause of action, namely Plaintiff
9 being passed over for promotion and subjected to an unwarranted
10 personnel investigation. (Complaint paragraphs 38, 43). The second 11 cause of action alleges that Defendants' conduct violated the Public 12 Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act (Government Code 13 sections 3300 et seq.), a statute which grants special procedural 14 protections to public safety officers in disciplinary situations.

15 PSOPBRA is not a statute entrusted to PERB for enforcement.
16 Nevertheless, the second cause of action is preempted and within 17 PERB's exclusive jurisdiction because PERB has exclusive primary 18 jurisdiction to initially pass on the legality of the underlying 19 conduct.

20 Garmon preemption applies with full force where, as here, the 21 same conduct is alleged to have violated both the MMBA and another 22 statute. In El Rancho Unified School District, supra, the school
23 district alleged that the teachers union engaged in an illegal
24 strike, in violation of the Education Employment Relations Act
25 (EERA). The school district also alleged that the strike violated

26
27 50 Cal.Rptr.2d 797 (1996).

28

1 the Education Code. The Education Code does not lie within PERB's 2 jurisdiction. Nevertheless, the California Supreme Court held that 3 the entire case fell within the exclusive jurisdiction of PERB. The 4 court emphasized that "what matters is whether the underlying 5 conduct on which the suit is based - however described in the 6 complaint - may fall within PERB's exclusive jurisdiction." 33
7 Cal.3d at 954, footnote 13. See also Los Angeles Council
8 v.L.A.U.S.D., 113 Cal.App.3d 666, 669, 672, 169 Cal.Rptr. 893 (1980)
9 (action alleging violations of both EERA and Education Code 10 preempted as within exclusive primary jurisdiction of PERB).

11 This rule was discussed at length in Personnel Commission v.
12 Barstow Unified School District, supra. In Personnel Commission, 13 the commission and the teachers union alleged that the school
14 district violated the Education Code by laying off district bus
15 drivers and contracting out the work. In a different proceeding, 16 the union filed a PERB complaint alleging that the same conduct also 17 violated EERA because it was retaliation for the exercise of 18 protected rights and was implemented in violation of the duty to 19 bargain. The court held that the Education Code allegations, as 20 well as the EERA allegations, lay within the exclusive primary 21 jurisdiction of PERB. In so holding, the court reasoned:

22 "Indeed, to hold otherwise would permit a party to avoid 23 exhaustion merely by avoiding any express claim of unfair 24 practice or other EERA violation in its complaint. In El 25 Rancho, however, the Supreme Court stated that 'what' 26 matters is whether the underlying conduct on which the

1 suit is based -- however described in the complaint -- may 2 fall within PERB's exclusive jurisdiction."

3 43 Cal.App.4th at 889 (emphasis in original).

4 Similarly, in Leek v. Washington Unified School District, 124
5 Cal.App.3d 43, 177 Cal.Rptr. 196 (1981), a group of school district
6 employees who did not belong to the union brought an action 7 challenging the requirement that they pay union fees, alleging that 8 the requirement violated EERA and the state constitution. The court
9 held that both claims were subject to dismissal based on PERB
10 preemption. In so holding, the court stated:

11 "However, as we previously perceived, it is a reasonable 12 probability that a ruling by PERB on the nonconstitutional 13 issues would obviate the consideration of constitutional 14 challenges. In any event, appellants are required to 15 exhaust their administrative remedies despite the 16 allegations of constitutional violations."

17 124 Cal.App.3d at 53. See also Link v. Antioch Unified, 142
18 Cal.App.3d 765, 191 Cal.Rptr. 264 (1983) (same, even though plaintiff 19 avoided referring to EERA in complaint).

20 Where, as here, the same conduct is alleged to have violated 21 MMBA and a statute not within PERB's exclusive jurisdiction, the 22 proper course is for the court to dismiss the case based on the 23 plaintiff's failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Leek, supra, 24 124 Cal.App.3d at 53-54; San Jose Teachers v. Superior Court, 38
25 Cal.3d 839, 863, 215 Cal.Rptr. 250, vacated on other grounds, 475
26
27

28

1 U.S. 1063 (1986). 2

2 Likewise, the second cause of action fails because all 3 Plaintiffs' causes of action are based on the same allegedly 4 unlawful activity, namely denying Lewis a promotion and conducting 5 an unwarranted investigation. Since that conduct allegedly violated
6 MMBA, all claims arising from that conduct lie within PERB's primary 7 exclusive jurisdiction and must be dismissed. This conclusion is 8 buttressed by the fact that Plaintiff Lewis testified that he 9 carried out all his PSOPBRA-protected conduct in his capacity as a 10 Union official.

11 D. THE THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

12 1. The Third Cause of Action is Preempted and Lies Within 13 PERB's Exclusive Jurisdiction

14 The third cause of action is a claim by Plaintiff Lewis against 15 both Defendants under California Labor Code section 1102.5, 16 apparently on the theory that Lewis became a protected whistleblower 17 when he told management that Kulikoff was having an on-duty sexual 18 affair with Lewis's wife. The third cause of action adopts the 19 operative allegations of the first and second causes of action, 20 namely that the alleged retaliation consisted of Lewis being denied 21 a promotion and unjustly investigated.

22 This cause of action fails for the same reasons as the second 23 cause of action, namely that it lies within the exclusive primary 24 jurisdiction of PERB. As explained above, since the retaliatory 25

26 2 PERB will assert jurisdiction over cases involving conduct that 27 may violate both MMBA and another non-labor statute. Fremont School District, PERB Dec. No.1240 (1997).

1 conduct allegedly violated MMBA, all claims arising from that 2 conduct lie within PERB's exclusive primary jurisdiction and must be 3 dismissed.

4 2. Lewis's "Whistleblowing" Was Not Protected Activity

5 In addition, the third cause of action has no merit because 6 Plaintiff Lewis's conduct in connection with Kulikoff's affair was 7 not "protected activity" sufficient to establish a prima facie 8 case of retaliation.

9 One of the elements of a prima facie case of retaliation under 10 California law is that the plaintiff engaged in "protected 11 activity." Flait v. North American Watch Co., 3 Cal.App.4th 467, 12 476, 4 Cal.Rptr.2d 522 (1992). To be protected activity, a 13 plaintiff's conduct must have been lawful. As the court stated in 14 Gonzalez v. Superior Court, 33 Cal.App.4th 1539, 39 Cal.Rptr.2d 896 15 (1995):

16 "Indeed, even where a statute protects a 17 whistleblower from retaliation, the employee's action in 18 opposition to discrimination must be lawful and 19 reasonable. For example, employers may discipline or 20 discharge an employee who copies the employer's 21 confidential documents even though the copies are be used 22 in opposing the employer's discriminatory practices.
23 Employees' statutory rights to oppose discrimination or 24 not to be construed as a general license to be 25 insubordinate."

26 33 Cal.App.4th at 1550 (emphasis added). See also E.E.O.C. v. Crown 27

1 Zellerbach, 720 F.2d 1008, 1012 (9th Cir. 1983) (illegal acts not 2 protected activity); Barrett v. Harrington, 130 F.3d 246, 263 (6th
3 Cir. 1997) ("Obviously, if the conduct spills over into illegal 4 activities . . . the First Amendment's protections end. . . .").

5 Here, Lewis caught Kulikoff and his wife through wire taps and 6 surveillance which violated California Penal Code section 631. The 7 undisputed evidence is that Lewis eavesdropped on telephone 8 conversations between Kulikoff and Mrs. Lewis, without their 9 knowledge, and without authorization from law enforcement. This is a 10 classic violation of California Penal Code section 631. Coulter v.
11 Bank of America, 28 Cal.App.4th 923, 33 Cal.Rptr.2d 766 (1994).
12 Indeed, Lewis, invoking the Fifth Amendment, refused to answer any 13 questions in his deposition pertaining to how he learned the 14 information which he later disclosed to management.

15 It is disingenuous, to say the least, for Lewis to now try to 16 use his own illegal conduct to cloak himself in the protections
17 afforded to whistleblowers. This Court should deny its imprimatur 18 to this abuse of the law.

19 E. THE FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

20 1. The Fourth Cause of Action is Preempted and Lies Within 21 PERB's Exclusive Jurisdiction

22 The fourth cause of action attempts to allege a claim under 23 California Labor Code sections 1101 and 1102, apparently on the 24 theory that Plaintiff Lewis's union activities constituted protected 25 political activity for which he was retaliated against by being 26 denied a promotion and subjected to an unwarranted personnel

27
28

1 investigation.

2 This cause of action fails for the same reasons as the first,
3 second and third causes of action, namely that it lies within the 4 exclusive primary jurisdiction of PERB. As explained above, since 5 the allegedly retaliatory conduct would, if true, violate the MMBA, 6 all claims arising from that conduct lie within PERB's primary 7 exclusive jurisdiction and must be dismissed for failure to exhaust 8 administrative remedies.

9 F. THE FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

10 1. Plaintiff Cannot Raise a Triable Issue of Pretext

11 The fifth cause of action is a claim under 42 U.S.C. section 12 1983 against Defendant Larry Pitzer. It alleges that Chief Pitzer 13 retaliated against plaintiff Lewis. This claim fails because 14 Plaintiff cannot raise a triable issue that the stated reasons for 15 Chief Pitzer selecting Moon over Lewis were pretexts to hide 16 unlawful discrimination.

17 In analyzing employment retaliation cases, courts use the 18 three-stage burden-shifting formula established by the United States 19 Supreme Court in McDonnell Douglas v. Green, 411 U.S. 792 (1973).
20 This framework applies in section 1983 claims. St. Mary's Honor 21 Center v. Hicks, 509 U.S. 502, 506 (1993); White v. Washington 22 Public Power, 692 F.2d 1286, 1288 (9th Cir. 1982).

23 Under McDonnell Douglas, the plaintiff has the initial burden 24 of establishing a prima facie case, which raises only an 25 "inference" of retaliation. Second, if the plaintiff establishes 26 a prima facie case, the defendant must come forward with evidence of 27

28

1 a non-retaliatory reason for its decision. If the defendant
2 produces such evidence, any inference of retaliation "simply drops
3 out of the picture." St. Mary's Honor Center v. Hicks, 509 U.S.
4 502, 507 (1993). Third, the plaintiff bears the burden of proving 5 that the defendant's stated reasons are "pretexts" for 6 retaliation.

7 Here, Defendants will assume (for the sake of argument only)
8 that Plaintiff can establish a prima facie case.

9 The non-retaliatory reason for the decision to promote Moon 10 instead of Plaintiff was the Chief's assessment, shared by most of 11 his command staff, that Moon had a better presence at the fire scene 12 and would work better with the command staff than Plaintiff would.
13 Thus, Chief Pitzer exercised his discretion under the Rule of Three 14 to pick who he thought was the better of the two at that time. The 15 "Rule of Three" is an accepted management prerogative throughout 16 the country. See e.g. Conde v. Colorado, 872 P.2d 1381, 1388 17 (1994) ("A necessary ingredient of the 'rule of three' is the 18 appointing authority's right to select any of the highest three 19 applicants."); Local 518, S.E.I.U. v. Division of Motor Vehicles, 20 621 A,2d 549, 552 (N.J. Super. 1993) ("promotional decisions often 21 involve a balancing of the interests of several employees, their 22 supervisors and management policy. Management decisions on 23 promotions in the context of the 'rule of three' require the 24 comparison of individual abilities, talents and other personality 25 factors.")

26 Presumably, Plaintiff will argue that this explanation is a 27 pretext because it is too subjective. However, the law recognizes

1 that decisions about the relative qualifications of candidates for a 2 high level management position are inherently subjective, and that 3 fact alone does not raise an issue of pretext.

4 Plaintiff probably also will argue that his credentials for 5 Battalion Chief were better than Moon's. While Plaintiff may think 6 so, no issue of pretext is raised in a promotion case unless the 7 plaintiff's credentials "are so superior to the credentials of the 8 person selected for the job that no reasonable person, in the 9 exercise of impartial judgment, could have chosen the candidate 10 selected over the plaintiff for the job in question." Millbrook v.
11 IBP, Inc., 280 F.3d 1169, 1180 (7th Cir. 2002). See also Price v.
12 Federal Express Corp., 283 F.3d 715, 723 (2002) ("In order to 13 establish pretext by showing the losing candidate has superior 14 qualifications, the losing candidate's qualifications must leap from 15 the record and cry out to all who would listen that he was vastly - 16 or even clearly - more qualified for the subject job.")

17 A closely analogous case is Denny v. City of Albany, 247 F.3d
18 1172 (11th Cir. 2001). In Denny, a group of white firefighters 19 alleged they had been discriminated against when the fire chief 20 selected two black candidates for promotion to lieutenant. All 21 applicants had undergone a testing process to arrive at a pool of 22 candidates the chief could pick from. The white plaintiffs had 23 scored higher on the tests than the black candidates.

24 The chief selected the black candidates based on his judgment 25 concerning "demonstrated leadership, maturity, interpersonal skills, 26 and a willingness to support management and its policies." 247 F.3d 27 at 1178-79. The chief also based his decisions on the 1 recommendations of other senior firefighters.

2 The plaintiffs argued that the stated reasons for selecting the 3 black firefighters were pretexts for discrimination because the 4 defendants' decisions were subjective and because the plaintiffs'
5 qualifications were better than the promoted blacks. The court 6 rejected both arguments, affirming summary judgment against the 7 plaintiffs.

8 As to the subjectivity argument, the court stated:

9 "A subjective reason can constitute a legally 10 sufficient, legitimate, nondiscriminatory reason under the 11 McDonnell Douglas/Burdine analysis. Indeed, subjective 12 evaluations of a job candidate are often critical to the 13 decision-making process, and if anything, are becoming 14 more so in our increasingly service-oriented economy.
15 Personal qualities factor heavily into employment 16 decisions concerning supervisory or professional 17 positions. Traits such as 'common sense, good judgment, 18 originality, ambition, loyalty, and tact' often must be 19 assessed primarily in a subjective fashion.

20 * * *

21 [A]n employer's use of subjective criteria in making 22 a hiring or promotion decision does not raise a red 23 flag."

24 247 F.3d at 1185-86 (emphasis added).

25 As to the plaintiffs' argument that they were better qualified 26 than the black candidates who were promoted, the court stated:

27 "The fact that Denny scored higher than Harris in two of

1 the three stages of the qualifications exercise does not 2 carry a great deal of weight in this case. Under the 3 Department's promotion policy, qualification exercise
4 scores mattered only for purposes of determining the pool
5 of qualified candidates. After that, other criteria were 6 determinative. Unless we were to find that the policy was 7 itself irrational or motivated by discriminatory intent,
8 an argument unsupported on this record, then Denny's 9 relatively higher scores on the 'objective' portion of the 10 qualification exercise would not prove that he is more 11 qualified, let alone substantially more qualified to be a 12 lieutenant."

13 247 F.3d at 1187.

14 Likewise, here there is no basis for saying that Chief Pitzer's
15 stated reasons for selecting Moon over Lewis were pretexts to hide 16 retaliation. As in Denney, the Chief based his decision on his 17 subjective judgment concerning "leadership, maturity, interpersonal 18 skills, and a willingness to support management and its policies."
19 As in Denney, the Chief solicited the input of other senior 20 firefighters. And as in Denney, the fact that the unsuccessful 21 candidate (here Lewis) scored higher on the scored departmental 22 evaluation is insufficient to raise a triable issue of pretext.
23

24 G. THE SIXTH CAUSE OF ACTION HAS NO MERIT

25 The sixth cause of action (mislabeled as the fifth cause of 26 action in the Complaint) is a claim by plaintiff Lewis against the 27

1 City of San Bernardino under 42 U.S.C. section 1983. It seeks to 2 impose liability on the City based on Defendant Pitzer's refusal to 3 promote Lewis to Battalion Chief. (Complaint paragraph 87).

4 A municipality such as the City cannot be held liable under 5 section 1983 on a theory of respondeat superior. Monell v.
6 Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658 (1978). Rather, 7 municipalities may be held liable only based on an established
8 custom or official policy of the governmental entity. Id. at 694

9 Where a decision maker possesses final authority to establish 10 municipal policy with respect to an employment action, municipal 11 liability under section 1983 may be imposed based on a single 12 decision by that official. Pembaur v. City of Cincinnati, 475 U.S.
13 469 (1986). However, the Pembaur rule does not apply where the 14 public official's employment decision is subject to meaningful 15 administrative review. Quinn v. Monroe County, 330 F.3d 1320 (11th 16 Cir. 2003). And, as discussed below, the official's authority must 17 be to establish general policy, not just the discretionary authority 18 to make particular employment decisions. Whether a decision maker 19 has sufficient final authority for Pembaur purposes is a question of 20 law for the Court. Id. at 483; Collins v. City of San Diego, 841
21 F.2d 337 (9th Cir. 1988).

22 In Gillette v. Delmore, 979 F.2d 1342 (9th Cir. 1992), a 23 firefighter alleged he was retaliated against by the fire chief for 24 invoking his First Amendment rights. The fire chief did not have 25 final authority on terminations because his decisions were subject 26 to review by the city manager, although the plaintiff had not sought 27 the city manager's intervention. The plaintiff argued that the city

1 manager's acquiescence was enough to establish liability under 2 Monell. The district court ruled in favor of the plaintiff, but the 3 Ninth Circuit reversed on the grounds that the fire chief's hire and 4 fire decisions, which were subject to review by the city manager, 5 did not provide a basis for liability under Pembaur:

6 "Here, Fire Chief Hall possessed the discretionary 7 authority to hire and fire employees. This alone, 8 however, is not sufficient to establish a basis for 9 municipal liability. Municipal liability could be imposed 10 on the basis of Hall's actions only if he was responsible 11 for establishing the city's employment policy. In making 12 this determination, a federal court would not be justified 13 in assuming that municipal policymaking authority lies 14 somewhere other than where the applicable law purports to 15 put it. The District Court held that the Eugene City
16 Charter and ordinances grant authority to make city
17 employment policy only to the City Manager and the City
18 Council."

19 979 F.2d at 1350.

20 In Greensboro Professional Firefighters Association v.
21 City of Greensboro, 64 F.3d 962 (4th Cir. 1995), a firefighter 22 passed over by the Fire Chief for promotion alleged he had been 23 retaliated against for his union activities in violation of his 24 First Amendment rights. The Fourth Circuit affirmed summary
25 judgment in favor of the city on the grounds that the Fire 26 Chief was not the final authority on personnel issues for 27

1 Pembaur purposes:

2 "While it is true that Fire Chief Jones had the authority 3 to select particular individuals for promotion and even to 4 design the procedures governing promotions within his 5 department, this authority did not include responsibility 6 for establishing substantive personnel policy governing 7 the exercise of his authority. His power to appoint and 8 to establish procedures for making appointments was always 9 subject to the parameters established by the City.

10 Appellants confuse the authority to make final policy with 11 the authority to make final implementing decisions."

12 64 F.3d at 965-66 (emphasis in original). See also Hill v.
13 Clifton, 74 F.3d 1150 (11th Cir. 1996) (termination by police 14 chief insufficient to impose municipal liability under section 15 1983 because police chief did not have "final policymaking 16 authority" since termination decisions were subject to review 17 by city manager).

18 Here, Plaintiff's attempt to impose municipal liability on 19 the City fails for at least two reasons. First, Chief Pitzer's 20 decision to pass over Plaintiff for promotion was subject to 21 review by the City Manager. The governing Memorandum of 22 Understanding states that all personnel decisions, including 23 promotions, are subject to review under the grievance 24 procedure. Under the grievance procedure, the city manager is 25 the final reviewer.

26 Second, Chief Pitzer does not have final authority over 27 establishing the City's employment policies. The Fire Chief has the

1 authority to make hire and fire decisions for the Department. His 2 decisions are subject to review by the Civil Service Board and, for 3 members of the bargaining unit, review pursuant to the grievance 4 procedure under the Memorandum of Understanding between the City and 5 the Firefighters Union, Local 891. The Fire Chief does not have the 6 authority to make decisions concerning overall personnel policies 7 for the City. Responsibility for personnel policies rests with the 8 City Council, subject to the provisions of the City Charter, the 9 Civil Service Rules, the MOU with the Union and the requirements 10 that the City meet and confer with the Union on wages, hours and 11 working conditions.

12 As in Greensboro, the Chief's authority to appoint and make 13 departmental decisions is not the same as final policymaking
14 authority sufficient to impose liability under Pembaur.

15 IV.
16 CONCLUSION

17 For all of the foregoing reasons, Defendants respectfully 18 request the Court to grant summary judgment in their favor.
