

Rethinking the Core Economy

Presenter Bio

James Nowicke, Associate Partner, McKinsey & Company

James “Jimmy” Nowicke is an Associate Partner with McKinsey & Company, where he is a leader in Digital & Innovation for the Capital Projects & Infrastructure Practice. Jimmy’s is passionate about supporting owner’s organizations, contractors, and institutional investors develop strategies and operational approaches that leverage innovative technology solutions to address the industry’s productivity challenge. He spends much of his time supporting clients and projects across the natural resources, infrastructure, and technology sectors in their efforts to achieve step-change improvements in cost, schedule, and execution performance.

Prior to joining McKinsey, Jimmy held roles with Constellation Energy, Quantum Energy Partners, and Goldman Sachs. He holds an MBA with Distinction from Harvard Business School and a BA in International Affairs from Princeton University.

Jimmy lives in St. Louis with his wife and two children. He is passionate about Cardinals baseball, the outdoors, and historical biographies from America’s Revolutionary Era.
