Types of Advisory Services

Wilshire is a global financial services firm providing diverse discretionary and non-discretionary investment advisory services and products to investors and intermediaries. Wilshire has assets under advisement of approximately $1.18 trillion as of June 30, 2020. Wilshire has approximately $73 billion in assets under management, providing discretionary investment services with respect to funds or accounts as follows:

- Wilshire sponsored funds including Wilshire Private Market's funds, the Wilshire Mutual Funds and VITs, the Wilshire Solutions Funds Trust and the Wilshire Institutional Master funds;
- Funds sponsored by third parties for which Wilshire serves as sub-adviser with discretion over security selection, asset allocation and/or manager selection;
- OCIO services where Wilshire has the discretion to hire and terminate investment managers and rebalance portfolio assets;
- Model portfolios where Wilshire has discretion over the model;
- Delegated consulting where Wilshire has the discretion to adjust the asset allocation of a portfolio to meet the ranges dictated by the chosen glide path; and
- Defined contribution plans where Wilshire has the discretion over the fund line-up offered to plan participants.

Wilshire's products, services, investment approach and advice may differ between clients (including discretionary accounts and even where similarly situated) and all of Wilshire's products and services may not be available to all clients. Clients may utilize different classes of the same issuer that have different rights, including, without limitation, with respect to liquidity and fees. The exercise of differentiated rights on behalf of one client may impact the ability of another client to engage in a transaction, investment or activity. Non-discretionary clients may have different rights in the same investment. For example, a private investment (or possibly redemption) on behalf of a discretionary client may prevent the investment into a fund (or redemption out of a fund) of a non-discretionary client. Wilshire may also offer products and services that compete in the market with products and services of clients relying on Wilshire for such products or services. For example, Wilshire may build products from indexes that compete with other users of our index.

Different divisions within Wilshire may have different approaches to managers, portfolios, funds or other investment products. Some divisions may favor, and some client portfolios may be better suited for, more active management based on investment ideas derived from short-term market views ("dynamic tilts"). The use of dynamic tilts may affect (positively or negatively) the volatility and expenses of implementing an investment strategy or portfolio and further cause differences between clients.

Tailored Relationships

Investment goals, objectives and/or guidelines for each advisory client are documented in each client agreement. Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. Advisory agreements may not be amended or assigned without client consent.

Client Agreements

Prior to the start of any client relationship, Wilshire enters into an agreement with the client. The agreement outlines the terms and conditions of the relationship including a description of the services to be provided by Wilshire, responsibilities of the client, fees as well as other standard contractual terms.

The following categories of agreements define our typical client relationships:

Discretionary Investment Management Agreement – Wilshire develops, manages and monitors a client’s portfolio with full discretion to implement investment decisions in accordance with an agreed upon investment policy detailing objectives, time frame and acceptable risks. Wilshire takes a top down, macro approach, providing portfolio construction for the client and hiring third party managers to construct asset portfolios in line with Wilshire’s broad investment mandate.

Non-Discretionary Investment Consulting Agreement – Wilshire advises a client in the development of an investment policy and assists in manager selection and monitoring, performance monitoring and risk analysis.

License Agreement – This is used for clients who want to license Wilshire’s analytical tools.

Relationships with clients that invest in Wilshire investment vehicles are regulated by the governing documents of the investment vehicles. Wilshire may also enter into an agreement with clients for unique, specified services.

Termination of Agreements

Generally, after an agreed upon initial term, an advisory client of Wilshire may terminate an agreement with ninety (90) days prior written notice. At termination, fees will typically be billed on a pro rata basis for services provided and Wilshire will refund any unearned portion of paid fees. Alternative termination terms may apply in private markets separately managed accounts and co-mingled closed-end funds.

Fee Billing

Fees are generally billed monthly or quarterly. Payment in full is expected upon receipt of the invoice.

Fees may be paid out of the client's investment account by the client's custodian. A client must consent in advance to direct debiting of its investment account. When we collect fees in this manner, at the same time we bill the custodian, we will send the client an invoice showing the amount of the fees, the value of the assets on which they are based, and the fee computation. Upon termination, fees will be billed or refunded, as appropriate, on a pro rata basis for the portion of the quarter completed. The portfolio value at the beginning of the period is used as the basis for the fee computation, adjusted for the number of days during the billing quarter prior to termination.

Other Fees

Client accounts may incur other fees not associated with Wilshire (e.g., administrative, custodian and/or transaction fees). Client accounts also incur brokerage commissions, which are discussed in the “Brokerage Practices” section of this brochure. Expenses other than advisory and performance fees and brokerage commissions, such as custody fees, are generally paid directly by a client to the service provider.

Funds are generally subject to operating expenses, including advisory fees paid to the investment managers and sub-advisors of the funds. If Wilshire invests a client’s assets in a fund (proprietary or nonproprietary), the client will bear a proportionate share of the operating expenses of the fund; in addition to the fees it pays Wilshire. If Wilshire invests a discretionary client’s assets in a fund managed by Wilshire, Wilshire will generally waive its advisory fee with respect to those assets; however, Wilshire, as the investment adviser to the fund, will receive a management fee directly from the fund.

Performance Based Fees

Wilshire may charge a performance fee for certain services to its clients qualified to participate in performance fee arrangements under the Investment Advisers Act. These fees are generally charged on a percentage of the profits earned from investments, at times only after a minimum return has been achieved. The pertinent fee agreement provides details about how these fees are charged.

The use of performance-based fees may result in conflicts of interest. Advisors may devote more time to developing and analyzing investment strategies or allocate opportunities preferentially to accounts for which it could share in investment gains. Wilshire professionals allocate client assets according to our policies. Therefore, accounts with performance-based fees are not granted preferential allocations and no client, regardless of fee model, is favored over another.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Since 1972, Wilshire has pioneered analytical-driven investment consulting and asset management solutions to manage risk. Wilshire was an early innovator of integrated asset/liability modeling, as well as risk management and portfolio optimization models to help plan sponsors and institutional investors arrive at optimal portfolios based on their specific needs. Industry research and our experience lead us to believe that the asset allocation decision has the greatest impact on a portfolio's long-term return and risk profile. Wilshire embraced this important concept over 35 years ago when the firm introduced its integrated asset/liability modeling technique to the industry.

The investment strategy for a specific client is based upon the objectives stated by the client during consultations and as mutually agreed through an investment policy statement. Wilshire has over 35 years of experience in assisting clients to develop investment policies, procedures and guidelines. Investment policy and guidelines are integral to all aspects of Wilshire's investment advisory services.

For those clients for which Wilshire has investment discretion, Wilshire primarily selects asset managers as sub-advisors to whom Wilshire delegates day-to-day portfolio management or invests in other investment funds, which it monitors and oversees. These investment managers or funds execute various types of investment strategies. Wilshire's selection and monitoring of investment managers is based on various criteria, including, without limitation, investment performance, risk management, investment philosophy, organizational structure, experience and commitment.

Wilshire also engages in quantitative, rules-based investment analytics, which are used in a variety of applications including monitoring broker-dealers' investment platforms and selecting securities for investment portfolios.

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Wilshire's investment approach seeks to mitigate risk and ensure clients are compensated for the risk they take. The risk for each client varies in accordance with their policies, procedures, goals, guidelines and stated risk tolerance. In addition, all of Wilshire's clients will encounter risks, including, but not limited to:

Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying value or the company's circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.

Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.

Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.

Currency Risk: Foreign investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

Reinvestment Risk: Future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e., interest rate). This risk primarily relates to fixed income securities.

Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil companies are subject to the vagaries of both broadly fluctuating demand, and accordingly, prices for their product. They carry a higher degree of risk of loss in comparison to an electric company, which has a more predictable demand for its product at a regulated price.

Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not, given the lengthy process to sell real estate.

Financial Risk: Financial risk represents a broad spectrum of risk associated with a company's financings, including loans and the risk of default.

Disciplinary Information

Legal and Disciplinary

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to a client's evaluation of the adviser or the integrity of the adviser's management. While Wilshire may be engaged in various civil litigation matters from time to time, to the best of Wilshire's knowledge there is no current or pending litigation against Wilshire that would affect its ability to fulfill contractual commitments. Wilshire has no reportable legal or disciplinary events.

Conflicts of Interest

Conflicts of Interest

A conflict of interest exists when circumstances create a risk that Wilshire or its personnel's professional judgment, recommendations or actions on behalf of a client might be unduly influenced by a secondary interest relating to Wilshire itself, its personnel, a related party or another client.. A conflict of interest may exist even though it is Wilshire's policy to make recommendations and decisions based solely upon the best interests of the client and without regard to any benefit (economic or otherwise) that Wilshire receives or might receive. The existence of a conflict of interest does not necessarily mean that anyone has acted inappropriately. Conflicts may arise from activities beneficial to Wilshire's clients, such as Wilshire gaining new expertise or tools that allow it provide new products and services to clients. However, conflicts of interest do represent risks which need to be managed.

Without limitation, conflicts of interest may arise when Wilshire is in a position to: i) provide advice or a recommendation to a client with regards to Wilshire's own products or services; ii) provide advice or a recommendation with regards to a product or service with which Wilshire competes; iii) evaluate, review or recommend an investment manager or other financial services provider with which Wilshire has a business relationship or to which it provides services; iv) make a decision which may have different effects on different clients or v) recommend the services of a third party from which Wilshire currently obtains a benefit (economic or otherwise).

Wilshire recognizes that the Transaction and new ownership creates conflicts of interest. There is a risk that the Investor Group will attempt to inappropriately benefit from Wilshire's access to pools of capital, relations with large institutional investors and market influence. There is also a risk that the Investor Group could seek to influence Wilshire's advice to its clients. To mitigate the conflict, Wilshire will maintain an organizational structure and conflicts management process that will ensure independence of its investment processes. While the parent of the Buyer, which is controlled by Motive Partners and CC Capital, will be responsible for the strategic direction of Wilshire, Wilshire will continue to function as an independent fiduciary.

Other conflicts of interest arise because Wilshire has extensive business relationships with, and may provide services to, investment managers and other financial services providers that may be evaluated or recommended by us. Wilshire, for example, engages sub-advisors to manage portions of its discretionary funds. It may also be engaged as a sub-advisor by third-party funds. As well, Wilshire's manager research team, which produces manager evaluations may participate in providing certain services to financial services providers, including investment managers and financial services providers that Wilshire may recommend to advisory clients. Wilshire may also offer products and services that compete in the market with products and services of clients relying on Wilshire for such products or services. For example, Wilshire may build products from indexes that compete with other users of our index.

Wilshire also receives differentiated fees or other compensation (including performance-based fees) from clients and may have incentives to favor some clients or accounts over others. For example, certain investors that are invested in pooled investment vehicles may pay higher or lower fees and expenses or may be subject to higher or lower incentive allocations than similarly situated investors that are invested in the same pooled investment vehicle. Amounts may vary as a result of differentiated factors that may include the particular circumstances of the investor or the size and scope of the overall relationship. Fee and expense allocations to investors may differ depending on the class of shares. In addition, Wilshire provides products and services that compete with those that we evaluate or recommend.

Wilshire recognizes that there are potential conflicts of interest between Wilshire's obligation to provide objective advice to clients and our relationships with the investment managers and financial services providers we recommend to those clients. It is Wilshire's policy to make evaluations, recommendations and decisions based solely upon the best interests of the client and without regard to any benefit (economic or otherwise) that Wilshire receives or might receive. Wilshire is committed to ensuring that it does not consider an investment manager's or financial service provider's business relationship with Wilshire, or lack thereof, in performing evaluations for or making recommendations to its advisory clients. Wilshire has implemented policies and procedures that seek to mitigate conflicts of interest through appropriate oversight, transparency and controls.

Oversight

Wilshire has charged the WMC made up of the most senior members of Wilshire's executive team, including the President, Chief Operating Officer, Chief Financial Officer, General Counsel, Chief Compliance Officer and other members of senior management, to identify, evaluate and oversee conflicts of interest, and develop and execute appropriate policies. Members of the WMC associated with the Investor Group may not participate in conflict of interest decisions related to such member. When appropriate the WMC may delegate issues to other Wilshire committees, such as the Wilshire Investment Committee (WIC), to provide oversight or an independent assessment of an investment issue where a conflict of interest is present. Conflicts of interests that must be brought to the WMC, without limitation, include:

- Conflicts arising between Wilshire and the Investor Group or their affiliates.
  - Wilshire providing advice or information to a current advisory client about a fund or other investment vehicle for which Wilshire or one of its affiliates is the investment manager.
  - Wilshire provides advice or information to a current advisory client about additional discretionary services of another Wilshire business unit.
  - Wilshire provides advice or information to a new client about its ability to provide both investment advisory and discretionary investment services (through either a separate account or a Wilshire vehicle).
- Wilshire is contemplating a product or service that may compete with a product or service of a client.

Transparency

Wilshire has an obligation to make full and fair disclosure of material facts to its clients. A fact is considered to be material when there is a substantial likelihood that a reasonable individual would consider it important or where knowledge of the information would be necessary for the client to make an informed decision.

Wilshire's policy is to disclose material conflicts of interest to its clients and prospective clients. Wilshire will provide existing and prospective investment advisory clients with a Conflicts Disclosure Report ("Disclosure Report"), providing a summary of relevant conflicts identified by Wilshire and listing all relationships that Wilshire has with investment managers and other relevant financial services providers along with a summary of the types of services that Wilshire may provide to those entities. Wilshire also provides certain advisory clients with a Disclosure Report when making a manager recommendation or when otherwise deemed appropriate. Clients receiving a Disclosure Report may request more detailed information about managers or service providers with which the client has or is considering a relationship by contacting Compliance or their client service representative. For each manager or financial services provider for which a client has requested additional information, Wilshire will, where appropriate, provide a more detailed report.

When Wilshire recommends a Wilshire fund or other product or service to a client, Wilshire will provide the client with relevant disclosures including identification of the potential conflict of interest and the benefits (economic and otherwise) that Wilshire may obtain from a client's investment; and, when deemed necessary, the client will be required to acknowledge and accept such conflict.

Controls

Wilshire will seek to implement relevant controls to mitigate conflicts. Controls include managing processes by which we deliver services to clients, assuring relevant and necessary personnel are engaged in appropriate activities at Wilshire and managing the exposure relevant parties within Wilshire may have to sensitive information. An ethical wall is a process for mitigating conflicts of interest by limiting the communication of information between individuals or groups, whether written or oral, which may give rise to a conflict of interest or cause harm do to the existence of a conflict. Where reasonable and appropriate, Wilshire has erected ethical walls around business activities where sharing information may create a conflict of interest. This will include relevant ethical walls between Wilshire and its private equity owners. The ethical walls seek to prevent members of one group from accessing information that may influence the service they provide to a client or providing information to a party that may usurp the use of such information for their personal benefit. Wilshire recognizes, however, that it may not always be possible to erect ethical walls where it is deemed necessary (e.g. where the personnel necessary for the assignment are limited in number and cannot be divided into select groups around which to erect an ethical wall) and will in such instances seek other means to mitigate the conflict, including disclosure or greater supervisory oversight.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

Wilshire's Code of Ethics ("Code") was adopted in compliance with the requirements of the Investment Advisers Act and the Investment Company Act of 1940. The Code emphasizes Wilshire's fiduciary duty to its investment management and consulting clients and the obligation of the firm's personnel to uphold that fundamental duty. The Code addresses securities-related conduct and focuses principally on personal securities transactions, insider trading, outside activities, gifts, conflicts of interest, political contributions and employee reporting requirements.

Wilshire has implemented Schwab Compliance Technologies to assist in the management, monitoring and reviewing of employee personal securities accounts and transactions. Employees, with limited exceptions, are required to maintain accounts at approved broker-dealers and are required to obtain pre-approval prior to trading securities listed on the firm's Restricted Companies List ("RCL"). The RCL includes publicly traded companies that are clients of Wilshire's advisory business units (excluding Wilshire Compass clients), individual securities being actively held or traded by a portfolio over which Wilshire has discretionary control, or if Wilshire believes it could be in possession of material nonpublic information about such companies. As detailed above CC Capital and Motive Partners as well as all publicly traded entities controlled by them will be added to the RCL. Business unit managers, in consultation with Wilshire's Compliance Department, otherwise determine whether or not to include companies on the RCL.

On an annual basis Wilshire requires employees to certify that they are in compliance with the Code. Wilshire will provide clients and prospective clients with a copy of the Code upon request.

Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

Wilshire does not have any affiliation with firms that sell products (i.e., broker-dealers). Select employees of Wilshire who engage in activity that may require their registration as a licensed agent of a broker-dealer are affiliated with a brokerage firm, through which Wilshire distributes investment products. Wilshire does not otherwise regularly execute or direct trading on individual securities and Wilshire does not generally make recommendations to clients regarding brokerage services.

Best Execution

On occasion, Wilshire may execute transactions through a broker-dealer on behalf of Wilshire managed funds or empower an agent to trade on behalf of Wilshire managed funds. When directly selecting a broker-dealer Wilshire will seek to have orders executed at prices that are as favorable as possible under prevailing market conditions. Wilshire will seek broker-dealers that can provide the best qualitative execution, taking into consideration various factors, including, but not limited to the asset being traded, the capability of the firm to execute trades efficiently, quality of price execution, the competitiveness of commission rates and transaction fees, Wilshire's limited trading activity, and the overall level of customer service. Thus, while Wilshire will give significant weight to the competitiveness of the available commission and transaction rates, it may not necessarily select the broker-dealer that offers the lowest possible rates. Additionally, even where Wilshire uses its best efforts to seek the lowest possible commission rate, it may not obtain the lowest rate for any particular transaction.

If a client directs Wilshire to effect transactions through a particular broker-dealer, Wilshire may not be able to seek best execution services or prices from such directed broker-dealers nor may it be able to "bunch" the client's transactions with orders for other accounts. As such, the client may incur higher commissions or other transaction costs than would otherwise be the case had the client determined to effect transactions through the brokerage relationships generally recommended by the advisory firm.

With respect to Wilshire client assets that are managed by a third-party investment manager, the investment manager has a fiduciary obligation to seek best execution for all transactions executed on behalf of the client in accordance with its own policies and procedures.

Soft Dollars

Wilshire does not have any soft dollar arrangements. Wilshire does receive payment from third parties for analytic services as a result of soft dollar arrangements by our clients.

Order Aggregation

Wilshire does not regularly execute transactions for multiple clients with a broker-dealer. Were it to arise, Wilshire may aggregate transactions if it were unlikely that aggregation would work to the disadvantage of any client whose order is to be aggregated. However, it is possible that the effect of aggregation may work to a clients' disadvantage in relation to a particular order.

Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

Each business unit performs periodic account reviews, as appropriate, when market conditions dictate or as agreed upon with the client. Client account reviews involve various Wilshire personnel and may include portfolio managers, consultants and members of our manager research team.

Review Triggers

Other conditions that may trigger a review are changes in applicable tax laws, new investment information, and/or changes in a client's situation.

Regular Reports

Clients receive periodic communications on at least a quarterly basis. The updates may include a valuation statement, portfolio statement, fact sheets, and/or market commentary.
