EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION CONCERNS

As a long-term shareowner in Nabors we are concerned with the pay for performance disconnect at the company:

- Egregious severance agreements approved by the Board of Directors – the Board previously negotiated a non-performance based $100 million severance agreement to the former CEO and an estimated $50 million to the current CEO.
- The company’s 2011 advisory vote on executive compensation failed – receiving only 33% support from the shares outstanding and 43% of the votes cast. Additionally, proxy advisory services have issued concerns surrounding compensation at Nabors – GMI Board analyst rated NBR’s compensation as a “Very High Concern”, Glass Lewis gave the company an executive compensation grade of “F”, while ISS rated their executive compensation a “High Concern”.
