

The New Operating Environment

With the Goldman Sachs Global Institute

The Goldman Sachs Global Institute, represented by Jared Cohen and George Lee, will discuss how new trends in geopolitics, technology, and global markets are creating a new operating environment for corporations. For boards, the challenge is not simply navigating volatility, it is understanding how all three of these forces now shape one another continuously. The institutions for the next decade will likely be those capable of integrating geopolitical intelligence, technological understanding, and financial strategy into a single operating framework.